2014 WISE Prize for Education

I am delighted to congratulate Ann Cotton for winning the 2014 WISE Prize for Education. The scale and impact of the work she has done through Camfed to educate millions of girls and young women in Africa is simply remarkable.

The government I lead is deeply committed both to universal high quality education and to improving the life chances of citizens in developing nations, which is why I can not think of a more worthy winner of this prestigious award.
